

Database Management Systems & Relational Model

Relational Databases organize data into tables with predefined schemas. SQL is used to query structured data. Database Normalization is a process to reduce data redundancy and improve data integrity.